

Landon Dickey

Special Assistant for African American Achievement & Leadership

San Francisco Unified School District

Landon Dickey recently earned a Master of Business Administration from Harvard Business School, where he was also co-president of the Harbus Foundation, the only MBA-led foundation in the country. Landon also has a Master of Science in Education from Hunter College and a Bachelor of Arts cum laude in Government from Harvard University.

Prior to joining San Francisco Unified School District, he served as an advisor to Boston Mayor Thomas M. Menino and as the Interim Education Advisor to Boston Mayor Martin J. Walsh. In these roles, Dickey advised the mayors on issues including standardized testing policy, education technology, school facilities management, and high school reform.

Most recently, he was a senior project manager for Jobs for the Future, supporting the development of career pathways and work-based learning opportunities for students in California, Arizona, and Colorado. Before entering business school, he was a member of Teach For America, where he taught 2nd, 3rd, and 4th graders in the South Bronx, New York. He also served as an Education Pioneers Fellow and consulted for the Marcus Foster Education Fund in Oakland and The Gates Foundation in Seattle.
